

Dr Matthew Muir

BVSc/BVetBiol (Hons) MRCVS

Matthew obtained a double degree in Veterinary Science and Veterinary Biology in 2010 with first-class Honours from Charles Sturt University, the newest RCVS accredited veterinary programme in Australia, offering a modern problem-based approach to learning over an extended six-year programme. He also received the Australian Small Animal Veterinary Association Award for Medicine and Surgery in 2010.

Matthew began work as a mixed animal (companion and farm animals) general practitioner in Griffith, Australia where he was exposed to a large caseload, including out-of-hours emergency, developing strong skills in orthopaedic and soft tissue surgery, dermatology and nutritional counselling.

Matthew then moved to the United Kingdom and commenced out-of-hours emergency and critical care work at a Royal Veterinary College Top-Tier Hospital and following began consulting in wellness and internal medicine.

In his last major role at the Animal Medical Centre in Hampstead London he was responsible for integrating nutrition and complementary medicine into the hospital as well as work as a Clinical Coach for training Veterinary Nurses. During this time he co-managed cases with leading conventional and integrative Veterinary Specialists in the United Kingdom.

After several years abroad, he has recently returned to Australia and is very excited to join the team at All Natural Vet Care. Matthew will be responsible for performing all surgeries and dental procedures, as well as practicing integrative medicine consultation encompassing conventional, complementary and alternative therapies.

His Veterinary interests are wellness & preventative health care, soft-tissue surgery, integrative dentistry and all disciplines linked to the gut-skin-brain axis (nutrition, immunology, dermatology and behaviour). Matthew is also very passionate about animal conservation medicine and one health (eco-health).

He is currently studying Veterinary Acupuncture and working towards national accreditation through an evidence based approach which bridges science & Traditional Chinese Medicine.

Outside of work, Matthew enjoys photography, travel, human health and bushwalking. He is the proud dad of two beloved rescue pets; Bowie, a 9 year old Dachshund cross and Belle, a 8 year old moggie.
